In more delicate, pre-mechanical times, ladies often depended House, Coates st., Charles E. Fair on fans to signal swains-summoning them or dismissing them, ducted). encouraging or discouraging them. "Women," said an English wit of a gentler age, "are armed with fans as men with execution with them."

vice, says the National Geographic Society. Fans have been found in the tombs of Egyptian pharaohs; they were known to the * Chinese 5,000 years ago, and they and Romans.

Probably the first fans were used in prehistoric times for the winnowing of grain and as bellows to fan the flames of campfires. They are still employed for this purpose in many parts of the world. Their first use as cooling devices probably was purely coincidental

A more romantic version of the origin of the fan is found in mythology. Cupid is said to have plucked a wing-or maybe just a handful of feathers-from the back of Zephyrus, god of the west wind, to fan his beloved Psyche as she lay sleeping on a bed of roses.

Feathers have been used in ians from the first. The ancient Egyptian fans employed peacock and other feathers; the oriental fans often were made of feathers, and they were sometimes incorporated into European fans which reached their peak in artistry in the 18th Century.

The folding fan was invented by the Japanese in the Seventh Century, A. D., and probably was brought to Europe by Portuguese traders a thousand years later. These folding fans used many materials, such as ivory, motherof-pearl, tortoise shell, and carved sandalwood for the sticks, or ribs.

The mounts, or webbing, were of vellum, parchment, kidskin, o paper and often famous artists spent many hours painting the mounts-just as the greatest skill was shown in the carving of sticks. Some fans were decorated with precious metals and gem stones.

In modern times fans have deteriorated somewhat, not only because of electric cooling, but to some extent because of commercialism. A cardboard fan, printed with the legend "Wintergreen for President," or "Joe Doakes-Fine Plumbing," can scarcely compete as art with the delicate handwork of Asiatic or European craftsmen.

Our modern revival of the fan is found in the entertainment world. Some dancers could not perform without fans.

Pinch-Hitting for Joe Elberson

Now that we have had a bad fish kill in Queen Anne Creek and Silver Lake, we may be on the way to get something done. This has been ne of the worst killings we have had, and the Bristol Fish and Game Protective Ass'n does not expect to sit back and let the guilty party et away with it. The fish which were seen on top of the water were not he only ones killed; the fish which were spawning were also killed. The fish which had just hatched are about ½ inch long, and these young fish cannot be counted. Some of the fish which were killed lay about 10,000 or 20,000 eggs in one spawning season. Most of these fish had ropped their eggs or had hatched their young. This would be more fish han the state stocks in five years in the lake and streams which enter

William Turner, of Frosty Hollow, found the fish dying in Queen late Pulitzer Prize Winner. Anne Creek on Saturday afternoon and called me. Chairman Homer Hobbs went into action at once and found Queen Anne Creek covered with fish just as "Bill" had told him it was. Homer took samples of water in the creek which will help the state find out what was dumped into the creek and where it came from. I took over on Sunday morning out the heavy rains on Saturday night had washed everything down into Silver Lake. I took tests of the water and found acid in the lake. The State Sanitary Water Board is working on it now, so whatever you do don't eat any fish that were caught in Silver Lake and do not go swimming there until this has been cleaned up. I do not expect to give up on this until it has been cleaned up.

Here is some more news for the fishermen. The schools of blue fish which have been seen at Barnegat Inlet turned out to be herring. I was down at Barnegat Light and caught 20 of these herring. There are schools of blues outside. I got a report from Darwin

Swan. He and a party of four caught 48 blue fish one day last week. They are catching a few king fish and a lot of blow fish in the surf on Long Beach Island. The flounders have not showed up as yet.

The monthly blue rock shoot of the Bristol Fish and Game Protec ive Ass'n will be held on Sunday, June 14th at the club's shooting grounds. The usual program will be offered including both Lewis class and practice shooting.

have had a bad fish kill in Queen Anne Creek and Silver Lake, we may be on the way to get something done. This has been one of the worst killings we have had, and the Bristol Fish and Game Protective Ass'n does not expect to sit back and let the guilty party get away with it. The fish which were seen on top of the water were not the only ones killed; the fish which were spawning were also killed. The fish which had just hatched are about ½ inch long, and these young fish cannot be counted. Some of the fish which were killed lay about 10,000 or 20,000 eggs in one spawning season. Most of these fish had iropped their eggs or had hatched their young. This would be more fish han the state stocks in five years in the lake and streams which enter

William Turner, of Frosty Hollow, found the fish dying in Queen Anne Creek on Saturday afternoon and called me. Chairman Homer lobbs went into action at once and found Queen Anne Creek covered with fish just as "Bill" had told him it was. Homer took samples of water in the creek which will help the state find out what was dumped into the creek and where it came from. I took over on Sunday morning out the heavy rains on Saturday night had washed everything down into Silver Lake. I took tests of the water and found acid in the lake. The State Sanitary Water Board is working on it now, so whatever you do don't eat any fish that were caught in Silver Lake and do not go swimming there until this has been cleaned up. I do not expect to give ip on this until it has been cleaned up.

Here is some more news for the fishermen. The schools of blue fish which have been seen at Barnegat Inlet turned out to be herring. I was down at Barnegat Light and caught 20 of these herring. There are schools of blues outside. I got a report from Darwin Swan. He and a party of four caught 48 blue fish one day last week. They are catching a few king fish and a lot of blow fish in the surf on Long Beach Island. The flounders have not showed up as yet.

The monthly blue rock shoot of the Bristol Fish and Game Protective Ass'n will be held on Sunday, June 14th at the club's shooting grounds. The usual program will be offered including both Lewis class and practice shooting
